COURSE DESCRIPTION

Let's dive deeper into business and marketing with a focus in the HRT industry in the U.S. and abroad! You will learn about leadership as it pertains to social, environmental, economic, and consumer factors that impact the HRT industry. You will also analyze operations, control systems, management structures, service levels, cost effective operations, and related technology. The skills learned in this course will ensure that you are ready to handle legal and liability issues and human resource functions. Throughout the course, you will develop an innate understanding that exemplary customer service skills define success in the HRT industry. You will not only understand the concepts, but also apply your knowledge and skills in project-based activities.

Mastery of standards through project-based learning and technical skills practice will provide students with a competitive edge for either entry into the education global marketplace and/or the post-secondary institution of their choice to continue their education and training. Employability skills are integrated into activities, tasks, and projects throughout the course standards to demonstrate the skills required by business and industry. Competencies in the co-curricular student organization, DECA, are integral components of the employability skills standard for this course.
